one of the contestants in the six days walking match at Madison Square Garden, New York.—This is a woman ironing—that is, she is ironing when she is not running to and from the stove changing irons—but most of her time is spent doing the latter.

Electric Flat Irons eliminate the “walking match.”—They are quickly, and stay hot, and maintain an even temperature all the time—no fire to keep going when the iron is not in use.

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 14, 1907.

IN a characteristic speech, delivered before an audience that filled every part of the Senate chamber and galleries, Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, Saturday evening made the Brownsville affair the text of a thunderous arraignment of the President's treatment of the dismissed negro soldiers and of his whole attitude on the race question. To the encouragement in the pursuit of social equality given the negro by the President's acts and utterances, Senator Tillman charged that the Brownsville affair was primarily due. And he predicted with a solemnity almost tragic that the President's encouragement of the negro in the pursuit of social equality would yet have more terrible results than those so far reached. The South, he declared, was living on the crest of a volcano that might burst forth at any moment in an eruption of violence so wide-spread and destructive that no man could predict the consequences. The President's policy was hastening the country to a race war such as the world had never seen. The President was ignorantly playing with forces of which he knew neither the character nor the energy, for only men familiar with the negro, as he existed in the South, were competent to gauge and to guide these forces. Senator Tillman discussed the race problem with his usual bitter frankness and again made it plain so far as he was concerned there was but one solution of it, the acceptance by the negro of the superiority and social and political supremacy of the white race. Yet he condemned the President's course in dismissing the colored troops as violative of the fundamental principles of liberty and justice. It was nothing less than a wholesale lynching of the negroes by an executive order, which was not warranted either by the law, by the army regulations nor by the articles of war. He challenged any man to find in those documents justification for the President's course.

JUDGE BARNSDALE has ordered an injunction against Treasurer Clay, of Campbell county, restraining him from offering for sale at Rustburg, today, any of a large number of lots near the city of Lynchburg on which he claims taxes are delinquent for different amounts during the past 20 years. On these lots are residences and stores valued at thousands of dollars, and as it has been shown that the printed statement offering the lots for sale is full of errors a commission is to investigate and will probably be appointed at once. It is said that the printed descriptions of property recently offered at tax sales throughout the State were full of errors and inaccuracies and it is doubtful if any of the sales made would be confirmed by the courts if objections were made.

PLANS, it is said, are rapidly reaching completion for the formation in New York of a new trust merger to be known as the American Silk Company. It is proposed to have a capital stock of $22,500,000, and it will control a large percentage of the domestic output of dress silk. The anti-trust laws do not seem to apply.

SWIFT & CO., the Chicago packing house, has acquired control of the packing corporation known as Schwarzschild & Sulzberger. The latter concern had its headquarters in New York and operated branches in all the principal cities. Combinations go merrily on despite the anti-trust laws.

(Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.)

Washington, Jan. 14.—Herbert H. D. Pierce, United States Minister to Norway, was today charged with using his former office of assistant secretary of State for personal gain by Prof. H. W. Elliott, of Cleveland, during the hearing before the House committee on ways and means on the proposed bill for the further protection of the fur seals on the high seas. Prof. Elliott informed the committee that from 1900 up to the time of Secretary of State, John Hay's death, he was confidential agent of the State Department. He stated that while Mr. Pierce was acting as the United States government's representative before the Hague in the settlement of claims growing out of the seizure of the vessel, J. Hamilton Lewis, by the Russian government on the charge of pelagic sealing he also represented the owners and instituted action in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia to secure payment of his fees out of the money awarded to owners of the vessel. The charge created a sensation in the committee and Messrs. Williams and Champ Clark declared that it was such a serious reflection upon the administration that it demanded a searching inquiry. Mr. Pierce last year figured in the charges of former counsel general MacWade, of Canton, who declared that Mr. Pierce, while on a tour of inspection in the Orient, had "shaken him down" for a costly tiger skin. When the charge was made, Mr. Pierce returned the tiger skin to Mr. MacWade by messenger. Prof. Elliott asked that the United States annul the lease of the sealing privileges for Eribol Island, now sold by the North American Commercial Company Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, he says, is the representative Kaiser's Defeat Predicted. Berlin, Jan. 14.—With the close of the present electoral campaign Kaiser William will probably find himself, figuratively at least, merely a man among men instead of "a divinely appointed ruler of men." Defeat will surely mean the political downfall of the Kaiser. The principal issue which the socialists have raised is the increased power of the Kaiser in the government. This has been attacked as subversive to all parliamentary government. On this issue, backed by arguments against the enormous increase of army and navy expenditures, the increase of the imperial debt and tremendous rise in prices, the socialists have waged a campaign that promises to return a majority to the Reichstag. The attitude of the government has been marked with blunders from beginning. Political forecasters are saying that if the government is beaten the result can only be interpreted as a personal defeat for the Kaiser, and this is the view the people generally take of the situation.

Change of Faith. Colonization, Pa., Jan. 14.—The Rev. Dr. S. E. J. Dr. Lloyd will renounce the Episcopal faith and will join the Catholic Church. On January 20 he will go to Chicago, where he will be confirmed, devoting his time to doing Catholic missionary work there. He will be accompanied by his wife and son, who will also become Catholics. The fact that Dr. Lloyd is a married man will prevent his becoming a priest. In his farewell sermon tonight Dr. Lloyd declared that he considered Catholicism his true religion, and he will devote the remainder of his days to convincing others of his belief.

He was the author of a volume entitled, "Great Senators," and also of a life of Andrew Jackson. Moving from Washington to New York, he studied law at evening, and after only six weeks' preparation was admitted as a member of the New York bar. While engaged at night with his legal studies he did editorial work on the New York Ledger, under Robert Bonner, and was later associated with Charles A. President's Message.

Washington, D. C., January 14.—President Roosevelt sent a special message to the Senate today submitting additional testimony and various exhibits relating to the discharge of the three companies of the Twenty-fifth Infantry, U. S. Army. In the preface to his message the President says:

"As much as in the Senate the question was raised as to the sufficiency of the evidence, I deemed it wise to send Major Blockson, and Assistant to the Attorney-General Ford, to Brownsville, to make a thorough investigation on the ground in reference to the matter. I herewith transmit Secretary Taft's report, and the testimony taken under oath of the various witnesses examined in the course of the investigation. I also submit various exhibits, including maps of Brownsville and Fort Brown, photographs of various buildings, a letter from Judge Parks to his wife, together with a bandoleer, 33 empty shells, 7 ball cartridges, and 4 clips picked up in the streets of Brownsville within a few hours after the shooting; 3 steel-jacketed bullets and some scraps of the casings of other bullets picked out of the houses into which they had been fired. A telegram from United States Commissioner E. P. Cramer, at Brownsville, announces that 6 additional bullets—like the others, from Springfield rifles—taken from buildings in Brownsville, with supporting affidavits, have since been sent to the Secretary of War."

The President in closing says:

"The additional evidence thus taken renders it in my opinion impossible to question the conclusions upon which my order was based. I have gone most carefully over every issue of law and fact that has been raised. I am now satisfied that the effect of my order dismissing these men without honor was not to bar them from all civil employment under the government, and therefore that the part of the order which consisted of a declaration to this effect was lacking in validity, and I have directed that such portion be revoked. As to the rest of the order, dismissing the individuals in question without honor, and declaring the effect of such discharge under the law and regulations to be a bar to their future re-employment either in the army or the navy, there is no doubt of its constitutional and legal power. The order was within my discretion, under the constitution and the laws, and can not be reviewed or reversed save by another executive order. The facts did not merely warrant the action I took—they rendered such action imperative unless I was to prove false to my sworn duty. If any one of the men discharged hereafter shows to my satisfaction that he is clear of guilt, or of shielding the guilty, I will take what action is warranted; but the circumstances I have above detailed most certainly put upon any such man the burden of thus clearing himself."

Secretary Taft's letter to the President transmitted the additional evidence taken by Major Blockson and Mr. Fordy contains a resume of the evidence from aristocratic family. The countess is married at 14 to four children. She is separated from her husband, however, and it is rumored is now preparing to bring suit for divorce. As a decree is granted, report has it, there will be a marriage between Mr. Astor and the countess. The countess in question, has the reputation of being one of the most beautiful women in society, and has for years occupied a prominent social position. Friends of the countess and her husband have known of their unhappy domestic relations for a long time. The earl at one time caused a great sensation by publicly advertising that he would no longer stand responsible for the countess' debts. Some time ago a reconciliation was effected between the countess and the earl, but it was soon destroyed by a fresh disagreement. Recently the countess has appeared wearing beautiful furs and costly diamonds and gossip has it that they are the tangible evidence of the attention the American millionaire has paid her.

Sarah Bernhardt Suffering from Tumor. London, Jan. 14.—Sarah Bernhardt is suffering from a tumor, which may bring to a sudden end her wonderful stage career, according to dispatches from Paris. A rest of a year, at best, is predicted for her. Not long ago Madame Bernhardt fell heavily on the stage and has suffered ever since from the injuries she sustained. An operation brought temporary relief, but the tumor has reappeared and defies medical treatment. She suffered great pain, but her nerve has kept her up. The greatest danger is that she refuses to rest. A physician is in constant attendance on her, living regularly at her home and attending her to the theatre every night.

The Blizzard in the Northwest. St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—Canada, North Dakota and Montana are in the grasp of a cold wave of great intensity following the heavy snow storm that has been raging through this district. At 8 o'clock this morning the thermometer readings at stations in the Canadian Northwest, showed temperatures ranging from 14 below zero at Minneapolis, to 32 below at Battleford and Swift Current. The intense cold, which the weather forecasters expect to prevail for a day or two, at least, will materially add to the sufferings of communities experiencing a fuel famine. The weather is stopping trains, killing live stock and menacing human life.

The Wright Case.

The decision of the Court of Appeals Thursday was devoted to the case of Joseph Thomas, alias John Wright, vs. the Commonwealth, which was fully argued and submitted.

The negro Thomas, or Wright, was convicted in the Criminal Court of Alexandria of criminal assault on Miss Mabel Hitley, now Mrs. Forrest Gooding. The offense is alleged to have been committed at Luna Park, in Alexandria county, on Sunday, the 9th of September last. The negro was arrested on suspicion, and after he had been duly indicted and arraigned the court appointed Mr. James P. Clements to defend him. In its account the Richmond Times Dispatch says:

Mr. Clements undertook the defense in a perfunctory manner, but had proceeded but a little way with the case when he became convinced that the negro was innocent. Believing that he has fought the case from the beginning with a vigor and an earnestness that might lead to a casual observer to think he was getting a tremendous fee, which is not a fact. He is defending the negro and striving to vindicate him because he believes in his heart of hearts that the negro is the victim of circumstances.

In his argument before the Court of Appeals Mr. Clements sets up two bold propositions—first, that no criminal assault has been committed, and second, that if there was any breach of the peace at Luna Park on the Sunday afternoon in question, in which Miss Hitley was involved, it was between her and the man whose wife she became in a few weeks afterward.

Attorney General Anderson, in reply to Mr. Clements, ridiculed this view of the case. The whole matter is now in the hands of the judges, and their decision, which will probably be rendered on the 17th instant, will be looked forward to with considerable interest by many people in the extreme northern part of the State.

The "Jim Crow" Law.

Several weeks ago Barbara Pope, a colored woman of Washington, boarded a Southern train in that city for a point near Falls Church. The conductor directed her to take one of the cars assigned to colored passengers, but this she declined to do. The train proceeded to Falls Church, and on its arrival there the woman was placed under arrest by a policeman and taken before the mayor, who imposed a fine on the woman for violation of the "Jim Crow" law. She was also detained for nearly twenty-four hours from reaching her destination by reason of the arrest.

Counsel for the woman contended that

The attorney general says that the law in the case does not provide for a fine on the part of the offending passengers in such cases, but he holds that they can be removed from the trains. In cases of violations on the street cars the offenders are liable to arrest and fine or imprisonment, as no inconvenience follows for passengers and the police can be called on to take charge of offenders. In cases of railway trains the company is liable to a fine of $500 for not removing such offending passengers.

General Lee's Birthday.

The centenary of the birth of Robert Edward Lee, on Saturday, January 19th, will be generally observed in all parts of the South as a memorial of the great chieftain. Just one hundred years ago, on the 19th of January, Robert Edward Lee was born at Stratford, Westmoreland county, the home of "Light Horse Harry Lee," of Revolutionary fame. Arrangements have practically been completed by the Confederate Veterans of this city for the observance of the anniversary. One of the features of the day will be the services to be held at noon in Christ Church, which services will be under the auspices of Lee Camp and the lady auxiliaries. In the morning appropriate services will be held in the public schools. Superintendent Kemper will read Governor Swanson's proclamation and the pupils will read original compositions on General Lee and recite brief sketches of the great chieftain. At night Lee Camp will give its annual banquet, which is expected to exceed any heretofore held. A number of distinguished men have been invited to be present and make addresses, and the ladies will serve the banquet as only they can. Mr. C. S. Taylor is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

A horse which was taken up by Officers Gill and Talbot, is held at the station house awaiting the appearance of the owner.

U. S. Court.

[Judge Edmund Waddill presiding.]

When court adjourned Saturday evening the taking of testimony in the case of the Alexandria National Bank against the Willis C. Bates Company of Boston, had not been concluded, and the case went over till this morning.

The court required the defendant company to give security in the sum of $3,000, the equivalent of a security which the Bates Company had held against H. N. Girard and which, it is said, had been released after it had been attached. This order, it is said, restored the case to its former status. Papers securing the amount were executed in court that evening.

As previously stated, the object of the suit is to recover the sum of $2,752 from the Bates Company, representing the amount of a draft drawn by A. H. Bardine, an alleged agent for the company.

In the declaration filed the bank alleges that it cashed the draft for Bardine, as agent for the Bates Company, and it set forth that several drafts drawn by Bardine prior to the one in litigation were honored by the Bates Company. The Bates Company denies that he was their agent when he drew the draft in question.

When court met this morning it was reported that one of the jurymen was sick and the case was continued till tomorrow.

The case of Arthur G. Williams against the Washington, Arlington and Falls Church Railway Company, to recover damages in the sum of $10,000 was taken up today. In the declaration the plaintiff alleges that he was improperly ejected from a car of the defendant company while on the Arlington reservation. Mr. Samuel G. Brent represented the plaintiff and Mr. R. Walton Moore the defendant. The jury after being out three minutes returned a verdict for the defendant company.

Court adjourned till tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

DRONE BEETLES.

Drone beetles have a reputation for weather wisdom among country folk, who regard a flight of beetles as a sign of fine weather. M. Fabre, a French naturalist, wishing to ascertain if this supposition was correct, caged a number of beetles. One fine evening when everything indicated equally fine weather for the following day not a beetle flew about. In fact, during the night a storm broke out, and rain fell all next day. Another evening, when there were no signs of fine weather, the beetles flew about in all directions. During the night the clouds vanished, and next day there was brilliant sunshine. According to M. Fabre, drone beetles during three months are living barometers, more deserving of credence than physical instruments, their keen sensitiveness to the electric tension of the atmosphere being much greater than that of mercury. It has even been demonstrated that drone beetles are affected by atmospheric disturbances a long way off and that they sometimes grow restless when there is a storm more than sixty miles away.

He Disappeared.

Jerome K. Jerome once figured in what the reporters call a "mysterious disappearance." On a wager he agreed to vanish, and took himself off while his friends were still on the alert. He disappeared while they were reading a mysterious letter which he handed to one of the party. When last seen he was stepping aboard a houseboat on the Thames. Then for a month he seemed to have gone out of existence. His friends put the police on his track, calling for his arrest for stealing the boat. A month passed and then the novelist and the boat appeared at the latter's old moorings. What he had done was simply to take the boat a little upstream, then during the night erase her name and substitute another and change the color of the paint here and there so as to render her as unlike her former self as possible. His scheme was a success in every particular.

MONDAY EVENING, JAN. 14, 1907.

The City of Munich.

Munich is one of the most beautiful cities in Europe, with broad streets, frequent fountains, many stately statues, numerous open squares, large wooded parks, a swift river flowing directly through the center of the residence section, galleries that contain several of the finest recollections of pictures and sculpture in the world, libraries, academies of design, schools of science, a magnificent opera house, a theater that was erected exclusively for the production of Wagner's operas, and various other attractions which do not disturb the classic atmosphere, but appeal to the artist, the student and whoever seeks for beauty and for rest. No city of equal size has so many noble monuments and public buildings, while probably a larger number of the population of Munich is engaged in study and artistic and scientific pursuits than may be found in any other city. The Royal library is one of the greatest in existence, probably second only to the British museum.—William E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald.

Moving on the installment plan.

An expressman who called at a Nineteen-second street boarding house for two trunks was asked by the landlady where they were going."I don't know," he said. "You see, I do only half the hauling. I will take the things to our office, and somebody else will take them the rest of the way.
The boss at the desk will know the address. The moving is done on the installment plan to keep you folks here from finding out where the other people went. They were afraid to trust me with the number for fear you might worm it out of me, so they told it to nobody but the manager. Lots of people who move often make the trip in sections like that. Half the time when I take a trunk away from a boarding house I don't know where it will wind up. That is generally done when there has been a row and the folks who leave don't want to be followed. Been a little trouble here, I imagine," he added tenuously."Yes," sighed the landlady, "a little."

Where Cicero Took the Mud.

Marcus Tullius Cicero bathed in the mud of Lake Agnan 2,000 years ago in order to get rid of the gout. The mud of the standing waters in the district west of Naples was famous from early times for the relief of arthritis.
The luxurious high lives of the imperial days knew its efficacy and no doubt did these "cure" there in much the same rough and ready fashion as their modern representatives does now.
It is no doubt to the sulphur and other deposits that the mud of the little lakes on the promontory of Cumae owes its health giving properties, and as nature works much the same way now in that region as she did in the time of the Caesars the effect upon twentieth century gout is probably much the same as when the great Tully soaked his inflamed joints in the mud of the Phlegrean fields.

Caged Until Married.

On a certain island in the Pacific it is stated that the natives are still in the habit of confining their girl children in cages until they are of an age to marry. These cages are constructed of palm branches, and the girls are imprisoned in them when they are two or three years old. They are not allowed to leave their cage under any pretext whatever, and they are only taken out once a day to be washed.
The children are said to grow up strong and healthy in spite of their imprisonment.

Fatherly Advice.

"Papa," said the girl with the new engagement ring, "did I understand you to say that you intended to buy me a piano for a wedding present?"
"Yes, dear," replied her father, "but I wouldn't advise you to mention it to George. He might break the engagement."—Chicago News.

Underwear is the Best

and Biggest in Our History

The women who are concerned with the getting of most for their money will find deep interest in this annual sale of

in order to make the price low, this store does not operate on such a principle. We've seen to it that our high details may seem to some stores. Al-
